Whether you're working with legislation ...
Congressional inquiries ... budget ...
or in public information ...

isn't one major problem finding the right individual on Capitol Hill ... the one of the 9,889 who can best help? Isn't another problem getting to know his background well enough to communicate easily?

Congressional Staff Directory publications are compiled to make your job easier by supplying correct information in a format designed for instant reference. Your work with the Hill will be more rewarding and meaningful when you rely on the Staff Directory. It's almost like having your own computer at your desk. You'll save time when it counts most ... you'll avoid embarrassing errors ... and you'll get results more often when you know where to turn for expert know-how.

Your 1974 Advance Locator is ready NOW! This pre-publication preview of the Staff Directory will get you off to a flying start by bringing you up-to-date on the Members and the changes in their Washington and home state offices, and their top staff aides.

Your 1974 Congressional Staff Directory, available in April, is larger than ever - 830 pages library clothbound - and includes the latest changes in the Hill staffs of Members, committees, and subcommittees and in the Federal Departments and Agencies. A widely circulated newsletter recommends it to clients as "a comprehensive book which compresses into one volume more valuable information about Capitol Hill than any other publication."

Looking ahead, you'll be concerned with the Fall election and the 94th Congress. California and Texas are among the states which will elect Members from new districts. This fifth edition of the 288 page Election Index with Redistricted States is published in September. It brings you biographical briefs of Congressional candidates, an up-to-date list of cities and towns in each constituency, and voting patterns for each district since 1966.

With 535 Members, 9,889 staff aides, and 349 committees and subcommittees to keep track of - you can use some help. Mail your purchase order today and let us help you fill the information gap.

Sincerely,

Charles B. Brownson
